four hours. What escaped your arms was drowned in the lakes. Forty flags, the standards of the Russian Imperial Guard, HO guns, •&) generals, more than 30,000 prisoners are the result of this eternally glorious buttle. This famous infantry, that outnumbered you, was unable to resist your attack, and henceforth you have no rivals to fear.

Soldiers! When we have completed all that is necessary to secure the happiness and prosperity of our country, I will lead you back to France; there you will be the constant objects of my loving care. My people will hail your return with joy, and you will have but to say, "I was at the battle of Ansterlitss," to hear the reply, "He is one of the brave!"

The battle of AusterlitJ? in the most splendid of all I have fought. I have fought thirty battles of the name, sort, but none in which the victory was so decisive, and HO little in doubt. The infantry of the Guard wax not sent into action, - the men were weeping with rage,

To-night I am lying in a lied, in Lhci Ixwitiful cartta of Count KauniU, and I have changed my shirt, which I hadn't done[1]? for a week ptwt. I Khali get two or threw hours* sleep.

The Emperor of Germany went Prince Liechtenstein to me this morning to auk for an interview, We may possibly get peace, before long,

4th, (To Talleyrand,) The Emperor of Germany ha* asked me for an interview, which I have granted; it tatted from two till four o'clock. I will tell you what I think of him when I wee you. He wanted to make peace on the
